REGULAR STAFF IMPRESSIONS

How It Struck

The City Desk-Man.

The attractive make-up and the great diversity of matter were probably the two most striking features in the issue of the Bulletin, which was brought out by the California editors.

The heads used were most of them new to every-day press, and many of them are so striking and attractive that they might well be adopted for daily use.

The "live" news-matter filled, quite naturally, the smallest portion of the issue, but it was given the best space in the paper. It was characteristic that the Californians, not being here long enough to become insularized, save the cable news the first column, first page, but immediately next to it they ran the principal "human-interest" story of the day, the Kunst bequest, prominently featured.

While the bulk of the matter was of course impressions and experiences of the editors, this in itself was the feature which made the edition particularly valuable as promotion literature, especially as it came from the greatest of promoters. The Press, and was bound to reach the bull's-eye of the Hawaiian promotion work.

Southern California. Furthermore, in spite of its bulk, this matter was handled in such a diversity of style and manner that the imminent danger of monotony was skillfully avoided.

Last, but not least, the comment and description of local conditions showed the results of careful observation, surprising when the shortness of the writers' stay is considered, while the bright little "Pump & Pans" paragraphs, a feature with which the Sunday Sun in Manila has made a great success, added materially to the brightness of the issue.

Linotype Operators

Had Intimate Acquaintance.

The California editors were an amiable lot of souls bent on rendering their "many" thanks to Hawaii through one fell edition of the Bulletin.

but, with apologies in advance, the subject is so delicate,—they eventually had not firmly established their respective statures, as editors of this one Bulletin, beforehand. At times it looked to the desk-hand as though some of the undisciplined and insubordinate Under-editors were running riot in their efforts to be thankful. It looked very much like a case of too many cooks. For instance, the flagrant manner in which the long-tongued Mr. Penny, who was merely the "Sporting Editor," came into the composing-room and teased the animals at the linotypes, was positively horrifying, and, furthermore, it is very doubtful if he "did" a line of "Sports"—it was all "thanks," you know, and that Mr. Johnson imposed recklessly on our facilities at times; he was actually so brazen as to order a border-story re-set in a different manner from that which the Operator had seen fit to use. Mr. Holt and the dignity that is a natural accompaniment to his embonpoint, and, like a good editor, carefully avoided the "machines." Horton?—well, say! we had better grab him before Hearst orders him about 3500 miles further east by north; he's a bright youth and it's pitiful he has to work for somebody when he is at home. There are some of these editors from whom we might well take lessons and there are some in the bunch who might well study with us awhile. There were times in the getting out of the Southern California edition of the Honolulu Bulletin,—from the printer's standpoint—when it looked like it would take all summer—and that means an indefinite length of time in Hawaii; But it came out all right, and 'tis right proud we are of their product. If the visiting editors entertain for us a similar opinion to ours of them we are happy. The only kick we have coming is because they did not bring the ladies into the composing-room and introduce them—especially Miss Tower, who must be a "peach," despite her timidity and appetite and suggestive name.

Thinks He Earned

Full Day's Pay.

From the standpoint of a court reporter, I should say that the Southern California edition of the Bulletin was a wonder. The court news was very brief and to the point. No unnecessary details were given and yet the news was complete. The court man also did a small amount of other work which would not come in his jurisdiction on the ordinary paper, writing a few of the heads and also handling the sporting page. He certainly earned his pay on that day at least.

Pressman Says They

Treated Him White.

The expeditious manner in which the product of their labors was delivered to me, the exact nicety of every detail, the extreme courtesy used by them to the force in my department, made it a pleasure indeed to redouble our efforts in our 48-hour stretch and vigil in getting out the edition of California Editors' Bulletin.

The Foreman Feels

Just a Bit Dizzy.

"Just tell me that they are a lot of good fellows," said the foreman, "I have been in need of sleep since the issue went out. Sometimes we feel like the man who went home drunk and waited for the bed to come, so he could get into it. Every five minutes a new editor would come along with a new theme of make-up, and so gradually we'd get around to the original proposition. It was all right, though. They are good fellows."

Mathews a Hot One

On the Waterfront Front.

J. L. Mathews, the waterfront reporter for the special edition of the Evening Bulletin issued by the California editors last Thursday, is a red-hot exponent of the efficacy of the glad-hand. In one day's work along the waterfront he shook hands with more people and passed out more heated atmosphere than a politician on the day before election. He proved himself irresistible, and the officers of every vessel in port were ordering up Scotch and soda before Mathews had been on board five minutes. If they had a story concealed in their brains, he had it before he left the vessel. The way he got onto the ropes was a caution.

It is hinted that Mathews may conclude that Honolulu is just about the place he is looking for and that he may make up his mind to come back here to live. If he does, he will have some of the local politicians taking to the woods before he has been here a month.

are attached, go to Colonel Parker and the rest to the purchaser.

"Payment was made into court of the sum of $200,000. This is to be applied to certain mortgages. The balance of the purchase price is to be paid to Col. Parker in separate payments of $25,000 each, payable every six months, and beginning on June 1, 1907. When these payments reach the sum of $450,000, including the $200,000 which was paid into court, the minor, Annie T. K. Parker, keeps back $150,000. She does this in order to protect herself against the dower interest of Mrs. Parker, as she did not sign the deed. However, it is provided that this $150,000 shall bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. a year. The same is the case with all the other deferred payments.

"The mortgages are estimated to amount to about $
